Judge Richardson's Lecture. Judge Richardson's Lecture.

The conclusion of Judge Richardson's portion of the course of post-gnduate lectures at the law school of Georgetown University, reached last evening, was one fitted to the body of the course which had preceded. The students and those members of the bar who attended the lectures agree in bestowing high commendations on the lecturer's thorough knowledge of his subjects and his sagnetiy in choosing the practical rather than the speculative parts of them. At the close there was a hearty and thoroughly spontaneous vote of thanks given the Judge.

PUBLIC AMUSEMENTS.

"Old Shipmates," "Camille," "The Colonel "-Lotta is Coming Next Week."

There will be a matinee at Ford's Opers-House
this afternoon, when the excellent play of "Old Shipmates" will be produced. To-night will be the last chance offered to see it. The play has made a good impression here. In commercial cities where there is a large class of people who "go down to sea in big ships," the play has had an astounding success. made a good impression here. In commercial cities where there is a large class of people who "go down to sea in big chips," the play has had an astounding success.

Mr. Eric Bsyley and his company will give the play of "The Colonel" at Ford's during Christmas week. The play was written by F. C. Burnand, the well-known "Happy Thoughts" man, who has long sustained a well-carned reputation as a humorist and dramatist, and being considered one of the brightest of the many brilliant writers for Pwisch, and satirizes the extravagance into which a clique of the zestbette school of London art and morals has drifted. Its purpose is light as most of the purposes which depend upon carleature are. It is sure to attain success, for it is a comedy of great interest in plot, is well constructed and sparkies with quips and epigrams.

The performance of "Macbeth" last night at the National Theatre was pleasing in many respects, as it afforded the friends of Miss Fanny Davenport an opportunity of seeing her in a character exceedingly trying, but whose difficulties were in the main thoroughly met. It was a pleasant relief to hear a Lady Macbeth with a feminine voice and with a gleam of femininity even when sho endeavored to macx herself to firther the ambitious ends of her hisband. The Macbeth of Mr. J. W. Albaugh was an evidence of the careful talent and intelligent conception of that gentleman, who is seen all too seldom upon the boards of the theatre he has managed so successfully. This afternoon Miss Davenport will appear in "Camille," in which role she exhibits some of the most gorgeous upholstery that ever emmated from the genins of Worth. Tonight there will be a grand double bill, comprising "London Assurance" and "Oliver Twist.

The ever bright and joyons Lotta, who has kicked her dainty heels into popular favor for many a year, and whose appearance each season is halled with the same satistaction as in previous years, will appear at the National Theatre on Moudey night, commencing her engagement with the play of "The Lit
